Director's Liability and the Updated Privacy Act

If cyber security and privacy policies haven't been a focus for you and your board, that's about to change. With Government taking data breaches seriously and changes to the Privacy Act becoming enforceable in February 2018 – now is the time to act.

Failure to comply with the requirements and where serious or repeated interferences with the privacy of an individual occur will attract a maximum penalty of $360,000 for individuals and $1,800,000 for corporations.

NOW IS THE TIME

All organisations need to review their current privacy and cyber breach processes to ensure they meet these new requirements.

Whilst the amendments refer specifically to organisations with turnover in excess of $3m, if you are under that threshold and doing business with larger entities you are also captured by this amendment.

Hope is not a strategy - it is always better to be prepared.
